ALBANY, August 19.
The following was received to-day by Colonel Lamont, secretary to Governor Cleveland, who is at Upper Saranac Lake with instructions to make it public on its receipt:

ALBANY, N. Y., August 18, 1884.
GENTLEMEN: I have received your communication, dated July 28, 1884, informing me of my nomination to the office of President of the United States by the National Democratic Convention lately assembled at Chicago. I accept the nomination with a grateful appreciation of the supreme honor conferred and a solemn sense of the responsibility which in its acceptance I assume. I have carefully considered the platform adopted by the convention and cordially approve the same. So plain a statement of Democratic faith and the principles upon which that party appeals to the suffrages of the people needs no supplement or explanation.

It should be remembered that the office of President is essentially executive in its nature. The laws enacted by the legislative branch of the government the Chief Executive is bound faithfully to enforce, and when the wisdom of the political party which selects one of its members as a nominee for that office has outlined its policy and declared its principles, it seems to me that nothing in the character of the office or the necessities of the case requires more from the candidate accepting such nomination than the suggestion of certain well known truths, so absolutely vital to the safety and welfare of the nation that they cannot be too often recalled or too seriously enforced.

WHEN THE PEOPLE GOVERN.
We proudly call ours a government by the people. It is not such when a class is tolerated which arrogates to itself the management of public affairs, seeking to control the people instead of representing them. Parties are the necessary outgrowth of our institutions; but a government is not by the people when one party fastens its control upon the country and perpetuates power by cajoling and betraying the people instead of serving them. A government is not by the people when a result which should represent the intelligent will of free and thinking men is, or can be, determined by the shameless corruption of their suffrages.

When an election to office shall be the selection by the voters of one of their number to assume for a time a public trust, instead of his dedication to the profession of politics, when the holders of the ballot, quickened by a sense of duty, shall average truth betrayed and pledges broken, and when the suffrages shall be altogether free and uncorrupted, the full realization of a government by the people will be at hand. And of the means to this end not one would, in my judgement, be more effective than an amendment to the Constitution disqualifying the President from re-election. When we consider the patronage of this great office, the allurements of power, the temptation to retain public places once gained and, more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office holders, with a zeal born of benefits received and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political services, we recognize in the eligibility of the President for re-election a most serious danger to our calm, deliberate and intelligent political action which must characterize a government by the people.

THE INTERESTS OF LABOR.
A true American sentiment recognizes the dignity of labor, and the fact that honor lies in honest, contented labor is an element of national prosperity. Ability to work constitutes the capital and the wage of labor, the income of a vast number of our population, and this interest should be jealously protected. Our workmen are not asking unreasonable indulgence; but, as intelligent and manly citizens, they seek the same consideration which those demand who have other interests at stake. They should receive their full share of the care and attention of those who make and execute the laws, to the end that the wants and needs of the employers and the employed shall alike be subserved and the prosperity of the country, the common heritage of both, be advanced. As related to this subject, while we should not discourage the immigration of those who come to

AND

VICE PRESIDENT.

Magistracy of the nation by the suffrages of my fellow-citizens, I will assume the duties of that high office with a solemn determination to dedicate every effort to the country's good and with a humble reliance upon the favor and support of the Supreme being, who I believe will always bless honest human endeavor in the conscientious discharge of public duty.

GROVER CLEVELAND.
To Colonel William F. Vilas, chairman, and D. P. Bestor and others, members of the notification committee of the Democratic National Convention.

Mr. Hendrick's Short Letter.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., August 20.
The following is a copy of Ex-Governor Hendrick's letter of acceptance of the Democratic nomination for the Vice Presidency:

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., August 20, 1884.
GENTLEMEN: I have the honor to acknowledge the receipt of your communication notifying me of my nomination by the Democratic Convention at Chicago as candidate for Vice President of the United States. May I repeat what I said on another occasion that it is a nomination which I had neither expected nor desired, and yet I recognize and appreciate the high honor done me by the convention. The choice of such a body, pronounced with such unusual unanimity and accompanied with so generous expression of esteem and confidence, ought to outweigh any merely personal desires and preferences of my own. It is with this feeling, and I trust it is so from a deep sense of public duty, that I now accept the nomination and shall abide the judgement of my countrymen. I have examined with care the declaration of principles adopted by the convention, a copy of which you submitted to me, and in their sum and substance I heartily indorse and approve the same.

I am, gentlemen, your obedient servant, THOS. A. HENDRICKS.
To the Hon. William F. Vilas, chairman; Nicholas M. Bell, secretary, and others of the committee of the National Democratic Convention.

G. A. R. Encampment at Bellefonte.

Clippings from the Philadelphia TIMES Dispatches.

BELLEFONTE, Aug. 16th, 1884.
CAMP CURTIN.

Nestling down between two pine-clad hills is a little valley which since yesterday has been dotted with lines of white tents, which stretch away upon Half-Moon hill, and this in honor of the War Governor, the boys have named Camp Curtin. The members of Gregg Post, 95, of this place, have erected their huge canvas, which once served as a circus tent, and in this group of the soldiers seek shade and genial companionship.

The road leading to the camp is lined with booths of peanut vendors, pink lemonade merchants and musicians who perform upon squeaky violins, while the man with the mystic wheel of fortune offers extra inducements for any extra dime the visitor may chance to have about him. It is estimated that 10,000 people have been in town to-day, surpassing in number the largest attendance at county fairs. The Philadelphia Times was accompanied by the Weecacoe Band, while there are eight bands with visiting posts present.

The parade this evening was quite imposing. After marching through the principal streets the men were drawn up in the Diamond. WELCOMED BY THE WAR GOVERNOR. Governor Curtin was introduced by Colonel Wilkinson, of the National Guard. When the burst of applause which greeted his appearance had subsided he said:

I am assigned the very agreeable duty of welcoming you to Bellefonte. I welcome you for Centre county, I welcome you for Pennsylvania, I welcome you, veterans of the war, for the great government you have saved to liberty and equality for all humanity. Veterans of war, we have met before some twenty years since. I gave you the blue uniform and the classic eagle of liberty. I handed the regiments of Pennsylvania the flag of the State and sent you to service to serve liberty to humanity in this country and teach liberty to all the world. Early in the war the government of Pennsylvania determined that the flag should have the coat-of-arms of this great loyal State in the field and surrounded by stars and the thirteen stripes of the National Government. I gave that flag to over three hundred thousand men myself. Two hundred and seventeen flags and only two were lost in the struggle, for the flag of the nation was taken and borne by strong, stalwart and patriotic men of Pennsylvania, who preserved the flag of this great State, brought it back and it remains in the archives of this State at Harrisburg now. I gave you all once before you saw me. I gave you the flag, the emblem of our nationality and power and liberty, and thanks be to God it was never stained by cowardice. [Cheers and applause.] And when Pennsylvania decided that the orphan of the soldier should be maintained and educated my heart went out in thanks for the great benevolence. [Cheers.]

Commander Dyer replied to the Governor's welcome in a neat speech. Two accidents have happened to mar the general pleasure of the day. Ticket Agent Rumberger, at Unionville, was struck by a passing excursion train and fatally injured. A carriage containing George Stewart, a G. A. R. man, and his wife, was overturned. Mr. Stewart was injured slightly and his wife seriously.

BELLEFONTE, Pa., Aug. 17.
The scenes in camp to-day have been very lively. The roads leading to camp have been lined with a constant stream of vehicles of all descriptions, from those whose antiquated appearance suggested the days of the wonderful "one horse shay" to the most modern. Despite the great crowds the best order has prevailed in camp and citizens express themselves as highly delighted at the behavior of the boys and the liveness of their presence has given the place.

Religious services were held in the large circus tent at 10 o'clock. Printed slips containing the hymns "Rock of Ages," "Jesus Lover of My Soul," "In the Sweet Bye and Bye," "Fencing on the Old Camp Ground" and "America" were distributed, and as the multitude of voices, accompanied by the band, arose many hearts were deeply touched in a way that all regulation church music would fail to accomplish. The sermon of Department Chaplain Rev. John W. Sayers was full of a direct eloquence which held the undivided attention of his listeners. At 2 p. m. quite a number of the comrades met in the tent to discuss the Berean Sunday school leaf. The boys spent the balance of the day lying in the shade of their tents, singing hymns or listening to and repeating reminiscences of their soldier days.

THE DRESS PARADE.

Fully ten thousand people witnessed the dress parade this evening. Half Moon Hill being literally covered with gayly-dressed women and children, with here and there a blue-coat who had failed to fall into line, while the valley was filled with the boys, who, with guidons, post colors and national flags flying, stepped off in good time to the old familiar tunes, which awakened memories of twenty years ago. The whole, lit up by the last rays of the fast setting sun, presented a scene of unparalleled picturesqueness in this section. There were fifteen hundred men in line. Governor Curtin and Colonel Hastings, commander of the fifth Regiment, N. G., reviewed the line with the department officers.

BELLEFONTE, August 18.

The morning and early afternoon hours in camp were exceedingly quiet, owing to the absence of many and the extreme heat. The Weecacoe Band gave an early open-air concert and other bands broke the monotony by striking up lively airs in different parts of the camp. GOVERNOR CURTIN'S POPULARITY. The love and enthusiasm for Governor Curtin must be highly gratifying to the old soldier. From half-past six this morning until he left for camp to witness the dress parade he was kept busy shaking hands with soldier callers and making speeches for numerous sermons. His appearance in camp is a signal for an impromptu reception. Early this morning about three hundred of the men, under the guidance of the Lamps and Razors, started in hacks for the Penn's Valley caves. These caves are a peculiar freak of nature. They are entered by boats from a creek, which flows through the main cave for a distance of half a mile. The water at the upper end of the cave contains a number of heavy logs and other debris, which have unaccountably gotten there. Opening from this are numerous dry rooms depending from the roofing and sides of which are beautiful stalactites. While the ride was through Penn's Valley, justly celebrated for the beauty of its scenery, it was very tiresome, being up hill and over the roughest roads, a distance of fourteen miles, stopping at Centre Hall for refreshments. The veterans gave the place a touch of the G. A. R. regulation yell.

PROLOGUE OF THE CAMP.

Just as the line had formed for dress parade the most motley crowd came whirling in, to the tune of "Johnny Comes Marching Home," that ever greeted the eyes of superior officers at such a critical moment. Leading the procession, clad in blue trousers, a hat minus a brim and a greater display of a flannel shirt—which had once been white—than the regulations of good society acquire, came City Solicitor Harry Taylor, bearing with tenderest care a young pig, which he tried to initiate in the order by ramming it into the mouth of a cannon. Following him came Quartermaster General John Taylor, Colonel E. Sellers and Junior Vice commander Daniel Caldwell, Comrades Shield, Gorman, Morgan, Long and others of the Lamps and Razors, bearing spring chickens which had been given an emphatic twist of the neck that had forever silenced any warning cackle of their sudden taking off young corn by the dozen ears, mirrors and other nondescript articles which they had picked up by the wayside.

As Harry Taylor got within a few hundred yards of the line of review some roughish comrade cut the sack, and the pig, with a proper appreciation of the occasion, started down in front of the line, giving loud, shrill squeaks, which, together with the crowds of boys and men who started in pursuit, the bursts of laughter and applause from the hundreds of spectators on the hillside, completely nonplussed Commander Dyer and Adjutant General Stewart. The parade was witnessed by about three thousand people, which was increased to about six thousand as the hour for the ball masquerade drew near.

To-day has been the greatest day Bellefonte ever saw. From three o'clock crowds have been arriving from every direction and at six p. m. the question, "Where do all these people come from?" was heard again and again. There was cause for wonder. The entire camp ground was massed with people; crowds covered the hills adjacent and the roads leading to the grounds were so crowded with vehicles and pedestrians that it was impossible to drive faster than a walk, while every available spot near the grounds where a team could be hitched was occupied. The dim and rush of the people in the town was most confusing. People had driven from all parts of the country and even from Huntingdon county, many coming distances of twenty-five to thirty miles. The parade was a most creditable affair.

THE LAMBS BEATEN.

At an early hour this morning a train of seven cars, crowded with soldiers and citizens, started for Snowshoe, which, after two hours of tortuous windings up and through spurs of the Alleghenies, was reached. Here, at the elevation of 2,500 feet above the level of the ocean, the excursionists spent a pleasant day. A country dance was gotten up in a grove near the village for the benefit of the Lamps, whose fame had preceded them. The figures, as called off by the master of ceremonies, were in vernacular peculiar to the country and, for the first time since their existence, the Lamps were beaten. After listening until one set had been gone through with they gave a plaintive bleat and sank to rest at the base of sheltering trees. The little village of Snowshoe was profusely decorated and Citizen Samuel Boyer won the whole band of Lamps by his kindness to them. The Millheim Band accompanied them.

THE SHAM BATTLE.

The sham battle, which began at 9 o'clock, was a complete success, arousing a great deal of enthusiasm on the part of the citizens, as it was new to them. The attacking forces were under the command of Colonel E. G. Sellers. Colonel H. G. Williams commanded the redoubts upon the hillside, while Colonel John Taylor held the reserves in control. After several desperate charges upon the breastworks, behind which the cannons lay, Colonel Sellers succeeded in capturing the gun and gunners. The cannons used were three six-pounders, owned by Posts 61, of Philadelphia, 64, of Williamsport, and 134, of Millintown. Besides these, 1,500 of the largest size cannon-crackers helped add to the illusion that a real battle was in progress. The display of fireworks put off later, consisting of rockets, Roman candles, and balloons with pyrotechnic attachments was very fine. Over 12,000 people witnessed the battle.

Her First Railway Journey.

Miss Prudence Pettingill at the mature age of sixty-one made up her mind to visit New York for the first time in her life. She had never seen a railroad, as such things had been unknown in Aarostook County until this summer, and the ancient farmhouse in which she lived was seven miles from the station. So she calmly upon a seat placed on the great wooden platform which surrounds the country depot, and gazes with amazement upon the train which arrives, pauses a few moments to take on passengers, and then proceeds upon its journey. The stationmaster interrogates the old lady, who sits placidly watching the departing train.

"Why didn't you get on, if you wished to go to New York?"

"Git on!" says the old lady—"git on! I thought this whole consarn went!"

Having explained to her that the platform was stationary, the man kindly advises her to wait for the express train, into which he escorts the maiden, and finds for her a seat by the side of a benevolent old gentleman. Clutching fast hold of the seat in front of her, she is at first very much alarmed at the speed at which they are going, but gradually becomes calm, and much interested in the novelty of her surroundings. The old gentleman answers her many inquiries very civilly, and, among other things, tries to explain the use of the telegraph wires, and tells her that messages are sent over them at a much greater rate of speed than they are traveling. "Wa'al, wa'al," says the old lady, "you don't ketch me a ridin' on 'em, for this is as fast as I want to go, anyhow." She has seen so wonderful things that she makes many up her mind at last not to be astonished at anything; and when the train dashes into the one which had preceded it, owing to a misplaced switch, and the poor old lady is thrown to the end of the car among a heap of broken seats, she supposes it to be the ordinary manner of stopping, and quietly remarks, "You fetch up rather sudden, don't ye?" Being provided with a seat in the forward car, which was uninjured, she arrives without further accident at her journey's end, and is surrounded by an eager crowd of huckmen, and listens in wonder to the oft-repeated call of "Huck! huck!" Grasping her umbrella in one hand and her handbag in the other, she looks down into the face of the loudest driver with the compassionate inquiry, "Air you in pain?" From the consequences of his wrath she is rescued and carried safely home by her nephew, who has come to the depot to look for her.

A House in a Tree.

Mention has frequently been made in the press of the peculiar places of abode of two of the quondam residents of Washington. Joaquin Miller's log hut attracts hundreds of visitors, and is a source of wonder and astonishment to those who never saw a backwoods clearing. But perhaps the queerest freak in the matter of dwellings is that of a pension office clerk, who has a horse in the top of a walnut tree on Mount Pleasant, which is a suburb of Washington. This tree house was first discovered about a year ago. It was then built in the boughs of a giant maple. Recently the occupant concluded to change his residence to a site more exalted, and he chose a tree further up the hill. The house itself is built on a large platform constructed around the trunk, thirty feet above the ground, and supported upon four heavy timbers. It is hexagonal in shape and about ten by fourteen feet inside. It is built of matched pine to a height of six feet, and the roof is composed of canvass awnings, so arranged as to admit of being raised or lowered at the will of the strange occupant of the hut. That Hayward is a man of taste, in spite of his strange abode, is evident from his personal appearance and the adornment of his home. He is a man of middle age, of fine appearance, and is devoted to literature. His house is handsomely furnished, and contains a very good library of standard works. The platform surrounding the hut serves as a sort of garden, and abounds with easy chairs, hammocks and other contrivances for comfort. The entrance is effected by the aid of stairs, which reach down to within six feet of the ground, and a step ladder, which is drawn up the platform when not in use. Hayward gives as his reason for imitating the selections of the Indian site that he believes the sanitary conditions of the altitude are better than on the ground floor, and that it is more "exclusive." He had been classed as a "crank" because of his love for rarefied air, but as he is of a sociable turn and is said to be an excellent clerk, there is no other reason to accuse him of unsoundness of mind, except it be that he occasionally "drops into poetry."

Cleveland's Letter.

Governor Cleveland's letter of acceptance which appears on our outside, is a model product of clear brains and an honest heart. It is short, to the point and plain in every sentence. It does not rehash the old worn-out party issues, but clearly defines the necessity for reform and the best way to accomplish that task. The contents of his letter will be approved by the sound voters of both parties and will greatly increase Cleveland's popularity.

A Comparison.

One of the main arguments, which Blaine Republicans advance in favor of supporting their candidate is, that Blaine will be better able to withstand the hand of office seekers than Cleveland. They forget however that the official actions of these men in the past go to prove exactly the opposite.

Governor Cleveland understood full well to keep the spoil politicians on short rations and thereby reaped the bitter enmity of that hungry element in his own party.

How about Blaine? Was he not always one heart and soul with the republican spoilsman? Let us see.
As quick as he became the chief of the Garfield Cabinet he took care of his favorites, such as Chandler, White, William Walter Phelps, Steve Hulbut and an army of others. They had good times and fat offices, provided for them by Blaine, their kind protector.

Well, if Blaine would be elected President of the United States, from which calamity God may protect this country, there would be a regular train of unsavory office hunters at his right hand and Elkins, Clayton, Dorsey and Kellogg, Keifer and Roberson will figure conspicuously as

Deliver us from all evil!

"Tell the truth," is more than Blaine dare say, and "Open the books," is more than he cares about hearing.

The Assessment Plan Won't Work.

If the government clerks could see their duty in the light interpreted by the republican collection committee, there would be no difficulty about raising quite a handsome sum of money for campaign uses. But the clerks refuse to look at the question in the same light that it is viewed by the committee. They hold that their duty to the government is to faithfully perform the labor assigned them, and that in making a good record as public servants, they discharge any obligation to the party in power, as they thus contribute to the successful administration of that party. The clerks are not willing to accept the committee's ruling that it is the duty of every one of them to give money for party purposes. The number of people in this country who consider the government employee as a sort of vassal of the ruling party is growing less.

MORE RECRUITS.

Why the Independents Will Support Cleveland and Hendricks.

Mr. Roger Wolcott, one of the most highly esteemed Republicans in Massachusetts, and eminent in all wise charitable movements in that State, has declared his inability to vote for Mr.
Blaine. Mr. Ripley Ropes, a distinguished Republican citizen of Brooklyn, N. Y., and the Hon. W. J. Bacon, a Republican octogenarian, of Utica, and former member of Congress, are among the later bolters. The National Committee of Republicans and Independents are constantly receiving letters from Republicans of the highest character who are not politicians, and who decline to support the nominations.
The number who do not care to take any public position upon the subject is, of course, much larger than that of those who declare their opposition. The ratio is undoubtedly not less than two to one. The five thousand or more names already enrolled in Massachusetts alone by the Independent Committee, therefore, show a very serious defection, and it is not a defection which lessens with a clearer understanding of the real issues of the campaign.

Judge F. O. Mason, long Judge of Ontario county, in New York, and law partner of Secretary Folger, was a delegate to the Garfield Convention in 1880, a man of high character and sound learning, writes to the Geneva Gazette, New York:

"I think that in this instance the Democratic party has not made a mistake. It seems to have apprehended the real demand of the people, which is for administrative reform, and to have met that demand by the character of its candidates. Cleveland has not yet had a long career, but it has been long enough to show that he possesses honest-ty and courage; that he regards office as a public trust for the benefit of the people, and not merely for a party; that he is sincere in his desire to reform the civil service and remove it from partisan control, and is in favor of honest government; economically administered. As to Blaine, he is a man who, as Speaker of the House of Representatives, volunteered to make a ruling upon a motion affecting a land grant in the interest of parties to be benefited by the grant, and who immediately afterward impudently turned the parties benefited for pecuniary compensation for his official action, and took it. He adopted for himself a standard of morals in official life so demoralizing and degrading as not only to render him unfit for the Presidential office, but for any office of public trust whatever. He represents all that is lowest in tone, most reprehensible in methods, and most reckless in spirit in the Republican party. Apart from his moral unfitness, he lacks the poise of character, the just balance of high talents, essential to a wise and judicious Executive.
He has shown no sympathy with civil service reform or any other reform, and his chief public utterances upon current topics since his retirement to private life consists of a justification for repu-diators in Virginia, and of a proposition for the distribution of the surplus moneys in the Treasury—the most mischievous and demoralizing in character ever offered for public consideration.

To select such a candidate to bear the standard of reform is to assail reform with burlesque."

DeWitt J. Seligman for Cleve- land.

The following letter carries with it its own very emphatic explanation.
Mr. Seligman is the son of Jesse Seligman, the famous Jewish banker. He was a member of the Republican County Committee, representing Nineteenth Assembly District, New York:
NEW-CASTLE, N. H., Aug. 7, 1884.

John J. O'Brien, Esq., Chairman Republican County Committee, New York.

DEAR SIR:—As a life-long Republican, I deem it my duty toward my country to aid in defeating Mr. Blaine.
For this reason, I shall join the Independent Republicans, and, in order not to occupy an inconsistent position, I herewith beg to tender my resignation as a member of the Republican County Committee. In this connection, I may add, that I shall vote the whole Republican ticket next November with the sole exception of substituting Grover Cleveland for James G. Blaine. Thousands of sound Republicans will do likewise.

Yours truly,
DEWITT J. SELIGMAN.

Ex-Senator McDonald on the Situ- ation.

From an interview in the Chicago News.

The Democratic party in our State was never in a better shape. We have no defections there. At Indianapolis the largest delegations in attendance at our ratification meeting were from the Irish wards. The Prohibition vote will not be large, nor will Butler get more than 12,000 votes in the State. The Republicans will be weakened by both the Prohibitionists and the Greenbackers.

A Republican View of Ohio.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 25.—Congressman J. D. Taylor, of Ohio, was at the Republican headquarters to-day. He says there is a want of money and proper organization in that state, and the Republican national committee must do something or they will not be able to get the full republican vote out, and it will be in October as it was two years ago.

Death of Dr. Woodward.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 18.—The war department has been informed of the death this morning, near Philadelphia, of Col. J. Woodward, surgeon, of the United States army. Surg. Woodward was one of the physicians in attendance on the late President Garfield, and has been in bad health for a long time.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

From our regular correspondent.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Aug. 25, 1884.
There can be no end to the comparisons between the brief and altogether sensible letter of acceptance written by Grover Cleveland, and the demagogical, elaborate and interminable trash sent out by Mr. Blaine. The letter of Governor Cleveland will be read and will be admired for its sentiments by both friend and foe. In this letter we find in a few lines the platform of a great party whose mission is to effect a reformation in the corrupt political methods that have become the fundamental groundwork of the dominant party, and to wrest that party from power. His reference to the patronage of the great office of the Presidency, "the allurements of power, the temptation to retain public place once again, and, more than all, the availability a party finds in an incumbent whom a horde of office-holders, with a zeal born of benefits received and fostered by the hope of favors yet to come, stand ready to aid with money and trained political service, we recognize in the eligibility of the President for reelection a most serious danger to that calm, deliberate and intelligent action which must characterize a government by the people," are words that should be sufficient to constitute a platform that ought to secure the emphatic endorsement of the American people.

The Republican papers all over the country are publishing a fable which may or may not be authentic, showing the aggregate receipts of the Government during the several administrations from Washington to Arthur, the total losses in each of the said administrations and the loss of each $1,000 of collections. From this table it appears that Washington's thefts were enormous as compared with Grant's, and that Martin Van Buren could outstep Rutherford Hayes eleven times over and then give him odds. Even Arthur with the Star Route thieves and ten or twelve millions of the Government's money in their pockets, only gets away one and eight-tenths mills on the $1,000, while Mr. Lincoln is accused of appropriating seventy-six cents on the $1,000 before John Roach was a factor in the Government! The reliability of this tabulated statement, prepared by Mc-Pherson, may be estimated from the cold facts of the developed larcenies of the Burnside, the Belknap, and hundreds of other thieves, convicted and unconvicted who have alone robbed the Government of more money than the aggregate percentage of every stealage from the first administration down to the end of Hayes dynasty. Why, the Indian contracts alone, would cover a larger percentage of stealing in 1883-4, than the whole four years of Van Buren's administration which show the enormous amount of $11.71 on the $1,000, according to McPherson, but it is altogether probable that what Mc-Pherson calls stealing under a Democratic administration, becomes only a pardonable and unavoidable deficiency under Republican supremacy.

Mr. Doran B. Eaton has written a letter in reply to somebody in Government employ who has been frightened into a contribution for the Republican campaign fund. Mr. Eaton, as one of Civil Service Commission, had better let this letter unwritten, though it is scarcely more than gibberish anyway.
Mr. Eaton tells the Government clerks that they may safely refuse to contribute to the campaign fund of the grand old party, but at the same time it should be understood that it is necessary to the existence of free Government that there should be parties in general and the grand old party in particular, and these cannot exist without the sinews of war, which must come from somewhere, and who better than those in Government employ can afford to furnish them? In spite of all that Mr.
Eaton says to assure those overworked, underpaid and hungered employees, I can safely assure every last one of them that the places they know will know them no more for ever if there should be a refusal or a neglect to obey the call for contributions that Steve Elkins and his cowardly Clapp are now clam-oring for.

Mr. Beecher Again.

The Cleveland Calumny a Gross Exaggeration and Outrage.

From the New York Herald.

General Horatio C. King has had a rather interesting interview with Henry Ward Beecher, in which the latter expressed the opinion that neither Ball, Mitchell nor any of the clergymen who made the original attack upon Governor Cleveland had furnished any facts in support of their charges. He regarded the assault upon the governor as one of the meanest and most dastardly things that had happened in his remembrance.
He authorized General King to say further for him: "I have nothing more to say at present, but what can be put in a few lines and that is that I have listened to these stories of Governor Cleveland about what he did when he was a good deal younger than he is to-day, and all the gross exaggerations that have been made by his enemies since that time, and the statements of gentlemen with whom I am acquainted and whose character I well know satisfy my mind that the governor has been subjected to a gross and outrageous misrepresentation such as could never have taken place except in the heat of a political campaign. While I forbore and waited until I had adequate light I am satisfied now that Cleveland is the proper man for president of the United States, and that as against Mr. Blaine's public and political conduct, Cleveland is an angel of light. How any man can vote for Blaine and feel a conscientious scruple about voting for Cleveland on the ground of morality surpasses my conception, for I regard Blaine as one of the most corrupt men in pecuniary affairs that we ever had in our government. I have no hesitation in telling my opinion in regard to the candidates.
What part I shall take in the advocacy of Mr. Cleveland I can tell better after I return to the city from my vacation."

Wonderful.

From the Pittsburgh Dispatch, Sept. 25th, 1880.

"Very seldom do we read of an actual case of recovery, where hope had altogether been lost, to parallel that which was Monday investigated by a Dispatch reporter, who had heard in various quarters persons talking to their friends of a cure, seemingly little short of marvelous, that had been performed. The plain facts in the case referred to, without exaggeration, are these, as they were learned from the mother of the young man, his pastor and other persons well known in the community:

"William Lincoln Curtis is the name of the young man in question. He is now employed at H. K. Porter & Co.'s locomotive works in Pittsburgh, Pa. A year ago he resided with his mother on Grant street. About that time he went to bed one evening with a violent pain in his shoulder, the result, he thought, of a cold.
The next morning the shoulder was greatly swollen, the pain was intense, and aches were felt all through his system.
His case was speedily developed into a violent form of chronic rheumatism, among the first notable features of which was the paralysis of his left arm.

"He gradually grew worse, and in a few months the elbow and knee joints and both ankles became enormously enlarged.
In March last the chest bones began to enlarge, and upon his left side particularly, spreading his face out of all resemblance to his former self. The pain in all his joints became intense; fever, with its deteriorating effects, was now added, and he became rapidly reduced to the semblance of a skeleton, while vitality reached its lowest possible condition, and his sufferings were of such an indescribable character that those who loved him sometimes thought it would be better if he was called away. At this time physicians well known in Pittsburgh informed his parents that they could give no hopes of recovery.

"The young man finally commenced taking that wonderful medicine, PERUNA. In two weeks quite a change for the better was perceptible. In six weeks all the enlargement had been reduced completely, while in spirits and good health he was as well as he had ever been in his life. Nearly three weeks ago he resumed work as a machinist at his old place, able to perform as much labor as ever in his life.

"The mother of Willie Curtis, in stating all these facts, said: 'Indeed I can not look upon the cure much less than a miracle. I do not hesitate in sounding the praise of PERUNA, and in recommending it to all my friends.'

"The pastor of the church where the young man attended Sabbath school was visited, and he readily confirmed the facts of the deformed bones, the emaciated condition from disease, and of the doctors having given him up. He was greatly surprised at his improved condition.
Said he, 'If he had not spoken, I would not have known him.'

—Mr. F. P. Ott, after several years absence paid this, his native town, a visit, to the delight of his many friends and relations. He also showed that he is still the same lover of music as well as an expert player on the cornet by assisting our band last Saturday while playing for the festival. Frank, during his travels, did not lose his genial and pleasant disposition and we bid him a hearty welcome home with the wish that he may tarry in our midst for some time.

—Rev. Tomlinson preached his farewell sermon at this place on last Sunday forenoon. The majority of his hearers were deeply touched and many a tear of regret was seen trickling over their faces. —BOILS, pimples, skin grubs, black maggots, eruptions, scaly skin, &c., indicate poisoned blood, and besides being disagreeable to you, afflicted reader, they are unpleasant to your friends and those compelled to come in contact with you; you owe it as a duty to your health and your friends to take a bottle or two of McDonald's Great Blood Purifier or Sarsaparilla Alternative, and be more pleasant and agreeable to look at. Money refunded to dissatisfied purchasers.

—PAROCHIAL REPORT of the Aaronsburg Lutheran charge for the past 10 years and 5 months: Infant Baptisms, 151; Additions, 218; Dismissions, 23; Weddings, 63; Funerals, 106.
Collections for Synod, $2445.21; Collections for Local objects, $18,816.46; Collections Ext. objects, $504.00. Perquisites amounted to $713.00. Sermons preached—1784.

The St. Paul's church was repaired at a cost of $200. The Aaronsburg church and graveyard underwent repairs to the amount of about $900 and the St. John's church in Millheim was built at a cost of $8000. There were five organs purchased in the different churches on the charge.

—29 conferences and 13 synods were attended and 41 communion meetings held. Catechise, prayer meetings, Sunday schools, &c., all received as much attention as it was possible to give them. A great deal of mental labor was done which cannot appear in this short abstract.

JOHN TOMLINSON,
Pastor.

—The U. B. church is undergoing repairs at present. A new pulpit, a coat of paint on the inside and outside and decorative paper hangings will be the improvements and when done Millheim will have another fine church among its number.

—One of Mr. Josiah Long's children, fell into the creek on Tuesday, and came very near drowning. Mr. Long resides right along the water, one half mile south of town, and his children being in the habit of playing on the banks of the creek, are therefore in constant danger of falling in.

—There is a story going the rounds of the press, of an individual, prominently described as the "Blue eyed youth," who indulges in the pleasant pastime of ducking the girls in the water, down near Jersey Shore. He invites them to go boating, takes them far out in the stream and then dips the boat, sufficient to throw them overboard, where the water is fifteen feet deep. He has carried on this conduct very extensively of late, and the people have come to the conclusion that it is best to check-mate him before he is allowed to proceed further in his mad career of attempting to make "little angels" out of some fair damsels down there. We think a dose of tar and feathers would benefit such as he, considerably.—Philipsburg Journal.

ADVICE TO MOTHERS.
Are you disturbed at night and broken of your rest by a sick child suffering and crying with pain of cutting teeth? If so, send at once and get a bottle of Mrs. Winslow's SORROWING STRIP FOR CHILDREN TEething. Its value is incalculable. It will relieve the poor little sufferer immediately. Depend upon it, mothers, there is no mistake about it. It cures dysentery and diarrhoea, regulates the stomach and bowels, cures wind colic, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, and gives tone and energy to the whole system. Mrs. Winslow's SORROWING STRIP FOR CHILDREN TEething is pleasant to the taste, and is the prescription of one of the oldest and best female nurses and physicians in the United States, and is for sale by all druggists and dealers throughout the world. Price 25 cents a bottle.

—The liver is the largest gland in the human organism and stands guard, as it were, at the portals of health. Properly performing its functions it eliminates all impurities and disease germs from the blood; failing in this misery and disease follows. An occasional dose of McDonald's Improved Liver Pills will insure regular, healthy and vigorous action of this great gland, and save doctors' bills and days of misery. Dissatisfied buyers can have their money refunded.

Madisonburg Scrapers.
Geo. Hazel has gone to Bald Eagle Ridge to clerk in a store for Mr. Rob.

Miss Lizzie Ocker spent Sunday at home. She has been absent all summer.

Miss Minnie Coats left our burg last week to return to her home at Farmers' Mills. Madisonburg has lost a very fine lady by her departure.

John Fisher returned from the West. It can't be such an agreeable place, else the emigrants would not return.

Mr. Samuel Hazel and lady, of near Bellefonte spent a few days with his brother in town last week.

Andrew Shafer sold eleven acres of land back of town to Luther B. Stover, for the small sum of $100 per acre.

William Noll has moved into his new house.

Does Miss Emma intend to read medicine?
The sham battle at Bellefonte on Tuesday of last week was but a farce compared with the one fought between a grandmother and granddaughter up the valley on Sunday. The occurrence is no credit to the young lady and shows her unpardonable disrespect for old age. 'Nough said.

Our jolly friend Mesh Williams took in the encampment last week.

One hundred and ten conveyances went through the Narrows on Sunday on their way to the Union county campmeeting.

Returning from the Union county campmeeting a drunken fellow ran into Isaac Orndorff's buggy, damaging the same to the amount of $20.00, which of course had to be paid by the culprit.

GULOVER.

—TESTIMONIALS many times are cut from the whole cloth, and for every one voluntarily given in praise of a meritorious article an unscrupulous and dishonest manufacturer can write up a dozen for his worthless products; but the following card from the traveler of Sower, Potts & Co., a publishing house known in almost every state in the Union, is so emphatic and to the point that we cannot refrain from giving it in evidence:

"Georgetown, Pa.
J. A. McDonald, Dear Sir:—Please forward by express at once one bottle Curtis' Carmelite Cordial to C. F. Camp, Esq., Stroudsburg, Monroe Co., Pa. It cured me so quickly and completely last summer that I recommend it highly to all my friends."

Single bottle guaranteed to cure any case cholera, dysentery, diarrhoea, cholera morbus, summer complaint, cramps or any intestinal irritation whatever, or money refunded in every instance. Should have a place in every household and every traveller's satchel.

—Col. Fredrick E. Goodrich's admirable "life" of Grover Cleveland is now ready; it is handsomely bound and printed, and contains upwards of 500 pages; it is illustrated by first-class artists; it is from the press of Messrs. H. Hallett & Co., of Portland, Maine. As a rapid biographer, Col. Goodrich doubtless without a rival in America, and the volume has the impress of the broadest information and most careful attention on every page. This is the biography that received the inestimable benefit of the active co-operation and assistance of Mr. Cleveland, his relatives and friends; this is the volume that is recommended by the friends and private Secretary of the distinguished candidate; it is a true picture, drawn by a master hand, of the life of the Statesman from the humble cradle to the present day, and presents a striking contrast to the score of so-called "lives" which are to a large extent filled with irrelevant matter made up from the newspapers of the day; those who are wise will subscribe only for the authentic Portland edition—the largest, cheapest, handsomest and best. The steel-plate portraits of Cleveland and Hendricks were engraved for the volume and are a standing rebuke to the caricatures which appear in the so-called "lives" with big pretensions.

We understand that this Authentic Standard edition is outselling all others, more than ten to one, and that its agents are meeting with the most phenomenal success. A few more agents are wanted by the publishers; the most liberal terms are offered. It is a splendid chance for beginners, as with this grand book no one can fail to do a great business. The volume also contains a biography of Thomas A. Hendricks.

Miscellaneous,
A Great Musical Event.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—Some 30,000 people attended the opening performance of Musical Director Gilmore's jubilee at Manhattan Beach yesterday, which included "Old Hundred" and "Nearer My God to Thee," with artillery accompaniment.

The Tallapoosa Sank.

COTTAGE CITY, Mass., Aug. 22.—The United States steamship Tallapoosa sank off here last night. The survivors had landed at Wood's Hole. She collided with a large three-masted schooner. She lies with her mainmast and top of her smoke stack out of the water. The Tallapoosa, with 140 men and officers, was bound to Newport to take on board Secretary Chandler. At eleven o'clock last night, during a thick fog, when three miles Northeast of Oak Bluffs, Martha's Vineyard, she was struck bow on by the schooner James S. Lowell, of Bath, Captain Reed, from Baltimore for Portland, with a cargo of coal. Her side was crushed in and she sank in five minutes in about five fathoms of water.

Four persons of the Tallapoosa were drowned. Their bodies were recovered.

Storm in Lancaster County.

LANCASTER, Aug. 22.—A heavy storm of wind and rain swept over the northeastern end of the county on Thursday afternoon. At Mount Joy borough the rain came down for an hour. North of that borough in Mount Joy township the storm was accompanied by hail. On Martin H. Risser's farm, north of Elizabethtown in Mount Joy township, a farm hand named Hessler was plowing with two horses and a mule. The sky was almost cloudless when lightning struck the animals killing all three of them. The handles were knocked off the plough. Strange as it may seem the young man was not killed, and was not more than slightly stunned.

MARRIED.

A Schoolboy's Essay on Heads.

Heads are of different shapes and different sizes. They are full of notions. Large heads do not always hold the most. Some persons can tell just what a man is by the shape of his head. High heads are the best kind. Very knowing people are called long-headed. A fellow that won't stop for anything or anybody is called hot-headed. If he isn't quite so bright, they call him soft-headed; if he won't be coaxed nor turned, pig-headed. Animals have very small heads. The heads of fools slant back. When your head is cut off you are beheaded. Our heads are all covered with hair, except bald heads. There are other kinds of heads besides our head. First, there are barrel-heads. Second, there are pin heads. Third, heads of sermons—sometimes a minister used to have fifteen heads to one sermon. Fourth, head-wind. Fifth, head of cattle—when a farmer reckons up his cows and oxen he calls them so many head of cattle. Sixth, drum-heads—drumheads are made of sheepskin. Seventh, heads of tails—when you toss up pennies. Eighth, double-heads—when you let off rockets. Ninth, come to a head—like a boil or a rebel lion. Tenth, cabbage-heads—dunces are called cabbage-heads, and good enough for them. Eleventh, at loggerheads—when you don't agree. Twelfth, head of chapters. Thirteenth, head him off—when you want to stop a horse or a boy. Fourteenth, head of the family. Fifteenth, a blunder-head. Sixteenth, the masthead—where they send sailors to punish them. Seventeenth, get up to the head—when you spell the word right. Eighteenth, the head of a stream—where it begins. Nineteenth, down by the head—where a vessel is deep loaded at the bows. Twentieth, a figure-head carved on a vessel. Twenty-first, the cathead, and that's the end of a stick of timber that the ship's anchor hangs by. Twenty-second, a headland, or a cape. Twenty-third, a head of tobacco. Twenty-fourth, a bulkhead, which is a partition in a ship. Twenty-fifth, go ahead—but first be sure you are right.

Division of Labor in Earthquakes.

Richard A. Proctor thus discourses in Longman's Magazine upon the consanguinity of earthquakes: Those who recognize or imagine a connection between the earthquakes in Great Britain and the movements occurring within the volcanic region of Southern Europe, remarked that during all the time that England was thus disturbed, the region of which Vesuvius is the principal outlet, had been quiescent. It is perhaps rather convenient for the theory of connection between British earthquake, and the Vesuvian volcanic region, that we may recognize evidence in favor of the theory, whether disturbance in one region synchronizes with disturbances in the other, or, on the other hand, with a time when the other region is unusually quiescent. Yet it must be admitted that even the apparently contradictory forms of evidence derived from the quiescence of Vesuvius and its fellow-craters on the other, when British earthquakes occur with exceptional violence, may in reality point in the same direction. For on the smaller scale it certainly has been observed that within the Vesuvian region itself, at a time when Vesuvius is at rest, the minor craters of this region are often found to be unusually active, while yet at times, when Vesuvius is in violent eruption, these same volcanoes seem exceptionally active too. It is as though when Vesuvius rests they tried to do the work which Vesuvius is neglecting, while, when Vesuvius is very active, they try to help the greater crater by sharing in its labors. It may, therefore, quite possible be the case that distant volcanic regions may show their kinship as much by alternating throes as by simultaneous disturbances.

Political Conventions.

At length the momentous day dawns, and the convention assembles. It usually sits in some vast building which contains eight or nine times as many spectators as the whole number of delegates. The scene is imposing and inspiring. The proceedings being in an orderly manner, but at the first interruption, or the raising of any doubtful point, the indomitable nature of the assembly is apparent. Every favorite name or motion which suits the humor of the convention is received with a tumult of acclamation which would be astonishing and appalling to one unaccustomed to great popular assemblies. At the moment of highest excitement, as when the nomination is actually made, the frenzy is resistless. The vast throng is standing on the floor and on the seats, shouting, yelling, and often weeping with mere nervous tension; arms are shaken wildly aloft with hats, handkerchiefs, fans, newspapers, or whatever may be at hand, and the uncontrollable roar is so overpowering that the brass-band, which is playing at its loudest, is entirely inaudible. The president of the convention wisely refrains from any effort to check the prodigious uproar, knowing very well that it will presently exhaust itself, and that of its own accord and by its own instinct the convention will again "please to be in order." This is, perhaps, the most striking impression of the whole week of the convention, with all its conflicts and confusions—that it is an assembly of persons of unlimited abundance to expression of every kind, but also of a habit of self-control and restraint which makes any perilous or riotous excess impossible. They will "have their say out," but they will also have order when all is said. The sergeant-at-arms in the convention, like the police in the city and at the hotels, is a ceremony. The delegates take care of themselves, and each defends the peace of all.—Harper's Monthly.

VELOCITY OF SOUND.—Josh Billings was asked, "How fast does sound travel?" His idea is that it depends a good deal upon the noise you are talking about. "The sound of a dinner-horn, for instance, travels half a mile in a second, while an invitational tweet git up in the morning I have known to be 3-quarters of an hour going 2 pair of stairs, and then not hear strength enough left to be heard."
